PRIZE MEDAL

AWARDED TO

C. T. PALSGRAVE

AT THE

WORLD'S EXHIBITION, LONDON, 1851.

Montreal Type Foundry, May, 1865.

In presenting to the Printers of Canada my third Specimen Book, I have to ask their indulgence for the delay in its completion; a delay which has caused to myself some anxiety, and to my friends and patrons, no doubt, some disappointment. I trust however that the Book, at length before the craft, will be favourably received and my exertions appreciated. Many new faces have been added, which could not possibly be sooner brought forward, and I flatter myself that, while claiming no superiority, these sheets will compare favourably with those of other foundries on this continent; the paper on which they are printed comes from the Valleyfield Mills of Messrs. A. Bantin & Co., and does credit to Canadian manufacture.

The new faces have been fitted by Mr. Drummond, who continues to give his careful superintendence to the manufacturing department of the business; and I will not, I hope, be considered pretentious, if I refer to the high standard for justification, finish and durability which has distinguished the type manufactured at this Foundry.

As agent for Messrs. Palmer & Co., of London, Paris and New York, I offer to the trade their celebrated Book and News Inks; and I also keep constantly on hand, Colored Inks of the well known manufacture of Messrs. H. D. Wade & Co., of New York.

While I continue to act as agent in Canada for the sale of Messrs R. Hoe & Co.'s Printing Machinery, Mr. G. P. Gordon's Job Presses, Messrs. L. Johnson & Co.'s Fancy Letter, and Messrs. W. H. Page & Co.'s Wood Letter, I will furnish to the orders of the Printers the productions of any other manufacturers of the United States, all of whose Books are on view.

With this introduction to the contents of my Book, I beg to return my sincere thanks to the Printers of Canada, for the support and encouragement they have given me during the last twenty-five years.

CHAS. T. PALSGRAVE.

Canada is a colony of Great Britain, but it is as free and unfettered as an independent nation. The wisdom of the Mother Country has entrusted to the Canadians the management of their own affairs. The Governor of Canada, who is also Governor-General of British North America, is appointed by the British Crown, and is its representative in the Colony. He nominates an Executive Council, who are his advisers on all matters. There are two legislative bodies, called the House of Assembly, and the Legislative Council, the members of which are elected by the people. The Legislative Council was formerly filled by nominees of the Crown.

The system of government is that of legislative, executive and responsibility to electors, in imitation of, and as similar as possible to that which exists in Great Britain. All Public Offices and Seats in the Legislature are held by persons possessing the confidence of the people and holding a certain limited amount of property, and being at the same time a British subject. The elective franchise is nearly universal. Every man paying an annual household rental of thirty dollars in the cities and towns, and twenty dollars in the rural districts, is entitled to vote.

Aliens or Foreigners can acquire or hold lands, and, when naturalized, which takes place under the conditions of three years' residence, and taking the oath of allegiance, they enjoy the full privileges of natural-born British subjects.

The British Government maintains a small force in Canada and the neighbouring Provinces for protection against foreign invasion, and for the maintenance and preservation of the fortifications of Quebec, Kingston, and other places, in the event of a foreign war. While the connection of Canada with Great Britain secures her against all foreign aggression, it is a measure of political liberty possessed by any people, and exercised in all nations, that municipal institutions, taxation, religion, and education. All her internal relations between government and people are those of a distinct and independent nationality; her external relations are in a measure controlled by the Imperial Government, but, as an instance of the liberality which distinguishes the latter, Canada is treated on an equal footing with the other nations of the same origin, government and blood.

Canada was once a French colony, and, until it was ceded to the British, possessed exclusively a French population. In that part of the Province which lies to the north and east of the Ottawa River, and which is called the Province of Upper Canada, the colony of French extraction, one of the nations of the Province is now about three millions. In several parts of the Province there are large colonies of Germans and Dutch, and some Norwegians; and it is probable that not less than forty thousand of these nations are now settled there. They are highly prosperous.

The rise and progress of cities and towns in Canada afford a curious and most instructive illustration of the expansion of the colony: the develop-

Harsh is the music of these days of force,
And rough as are their business. The loud bugle,
And the hard-colling drum, and clashing cymbals
Now reign the lords of air. These erise
Bring with them their own music, as do storms
Their thunders,—no inspiring hymn, no psalm
The handmaid to devotion; no wailing fugue,
No song, no merry catch, no madrigal;
No tender strophe, no solemn canon, but
The sharp alerte, the call to host and saddle,
The big hurrah of onset and the irregular
Chorus on the first-springing steel.

MINION ROMAN, No. 4.

In Lower Canada the extreme severity of the weather, in a great measure, caused by the range of lofty and rugged mountains, as well as by its more northern position. The snow commences to fall in November, but seldom remains long on the ground till December; in that month constantly successive falls of snow covers the whole surface of the country. Towards the end of December the heavy clouds disperse, and the rude storm is followed by a perfect calm; the air becomes pure and frosty, and the sky of a clear and beautiful azure. The River St. Lawrence is covered with ice, and the navigation ceases at the Richelieu Rapids; but from thence to Quebec only it is open for five years. At other times, however, we have enormous floods and masses of ice drifting up and down with the changing tides, increasing or diminishing, with the severity or mildness of the weather. Where the Island of Orleans divides the Great River into two branches, the northern channel is narrow, and is less acted upon by tides; here those huge frozen masses are forced together by the winds and waters, and form an enormous ledge from one shore to the other. The greatest danger of navigation is in the winter, and it is not till the first of January, for a few days, occasionally so intense that the human frame cannot bear the pressure to it for any great length of time. When winter has set in, nearly every bird disappears, and few wild animals are any longer to be seen; some, like the bear, remain torpid, while others change their color to a snowy white, and are rarely observed. Rocks of the softer kinds are often rent asunder, as if by the explosion of gunpowder, with the irresistible expansive power of the frost. Dogs become mud from the melting of the snow, and the wheels of carriages are often forced to the verge of the precipice, and are sometimes dashed to pieces, as if by a red hot bar. During the still nights of intense frost the wind is often a creaking sound, like the noise of chopping with hatchets. Sometimes a brief thaw occurs in the middle of winter, when a very extraordinary effect, called by the Canadians, 'ver glas,' is occasionally produced upon the bare trees. They are covered with an incrustation of pure ice from the stem to the extremities of the smallest branches; the slight frost of the night freezes the moisture that covered the bark during the day; the branches become at last unable to bear their icy burden, and are broken off, and fall to the ground. The trees are covered with this brilliant incrustation, the effect is indeliberately beautiful. The months of March and April are usually hot; and the power of the sun's rays is heightened by the reflection of the ice and snow. Towards the end of April, or the beginning of May, the dreary winter covering has altogether disappeared; birds of various kinds return from their wintry exile; the ice accumulated in the great lakes and streams that are tributary to the St. Lawrence breaks up with a tremendous mass, and is carried in great quantities towards the Atlantic ocean, until again the tide of the Gulf drives it back to the shore. The Great River is hoisted up from shore to shore with these frozen

Her name, a canary pulchra, with her flow-

With all the roses blowing from her cheeks,
And all the tawny jairess, with her hair,
Soon like white chaises-down, or as if wrapped
In ev'ny windling-sheet, or death had come
U'ring behind, damp breathing on life's flame,
She faded as a taper in the socket
And rolling on her seat: whence now I snatched
And bore her safely to mine own stout steed:
That care I thought through the winding lane,
As frolichted argosy through narrow seas,
Steered as it knew how previous was the burden.

MONTREAL TYPE FOUNDRY.

REVIEWER No. 3. (seventh page.)

About an hour's drive took us to the Falls of Montmorency. They are in the centre of a large semi-circular bay, bounded in by lofty cliffs, the waters descending over a perpendicular rock two hundred and fifty feet high, in an unbroken stream into a shallow basin below. At this time of the year the bay is frozen over and covered with snow; the cliffs on all parts, but particularly near the cataract, are hung over and adorned with magnificent giant icicles, sparkling in the sunshine, and reflecting all the prismatic colors.

The waters run and dash over, as in summer; but on every rock where there was a resting-place, half concealed by spray, were huge lumps of ice, in fantastic shapes, or soft snowy folds of untainted snow. Near the foot of the fall a rock stands in the river; the spray collects and freezes on this in winter, accumulating daily, till it frequently reaches the height of eighty or a hundred feet in a cone of solid ice; on one side the foaming basin of the fall, on the other, the hard frozen bay leading out to the river.

One of the greatest amusements for visitors is to climb up to the top of this cone, and slide down again on a toboggan. They descend at an astonishing pace, keeping their course by steering with light touches of their hands. The unskilful frequently tumble in attempting this feat. Numbers of Canadian boys are always in attendance, and generally accompany the stranger in his descent. At a short distance to the right, is another heap of ice, on a smaller scale, and called the ladies' cone. The fair sliders seat themselves on the front of the toboggan, with their feet resting against the turned-up part; the gentlemen guiding them sit behind, and away they go, like lightning, not infrequently upsetting, and rolling down to the bottom. The little boys in attendance carry the toboggan up again, the ladies and their cavaliers re-ascend on foot, and continue the amusement, sometimes for hours together.

They were all in high glee, determined to enjoy themselves; they tobogganed and trudged about merrily in the dry snow, and the servants spread out the buffalo robes, carpet fashion, on the snow; arranging the plates of sandwiches, with glasses and bottles, on one of the carriages, for a sidewalk. When the young people had had enough of their amusement, they re-assembled, seated themselves on the buffalo robes, while champagne

Though, late and little, our contrition shows
As tardy trickling from a summer rill.
Our eyes . . . dry as beads in dusty summer.
Perplexed of heart, upon our lips the words
Lie bound, as running rills by winter's frost;—
But do not thou hence, Stay : we may still
Make some rude restitution,—yet retain
These in the bound and retrospect of our view.

The furthest sources of the Ottawa River are unknown. It rises to importance at the outlet from Lake Temiscaming, 350 miles west of its junction with the St. Lawrence. Beyond the Falls and Portage des Allumettes, 110 miles above the town of Hull, this stream has been little explored. There it is divided into two channels by a large island fifteen miles in length; the southernmost of these expands into the width of about four or five miles, and communicates by a branch of the river with the Mud and Muskrat Lakes. Twelve miles further south the river again forms two branches, including an extensive and beautiful island 20 miles in length; numerous rapids and cascades diversify this wild but lovely scene; thence to the foot of the Chenaux, wooded islands in picturesque variety deck the bosom of the stream, and the bright blue waters here wind their way for three miles through a channel of pure white marble. Nature has bestowed abundant fertility as well as beauty upon this favored district. The Gatineau river joins the Ottawa near Hull, after a course of great length. This stream is navigated with canoes for more than 300 miles, traversing an immense valley of rich soil and picturesque scenery.

At the foot of the Chenaux, the magnificent Lake des Chats opens to view, in length about fifteen miles. The shores are strangely indented, and large numbers of wooded islands stud the surface of the clear waters. At the foot of the lake, there are falls and rapids; thence to Lake Claudiere—a distance of six miles—the channel narrows, but it expands again, to form that beautiful and extensive basin. Rapids again succeed, and continue to the Claudiere Falls. The boiling pool into which these waters descend is of great depth; the sounding-line does not reach the bottom at the length of 300 feet. It is supposed that the main body of the river flows by a subterranean passage, and rises again half a mile lower down; below the Falls, the navigation is uninterrupted to Grenville, 60 miles distant. The current is scarcely perceptible; the banks are low, and in the spring they are generally overflowed; but the ever varying breadth of the river, the numerous islands, the magnificent forests, and the crystal purity of the waters, lend a charm to the somewhat monotonous beauty of the scene. QUEBEC—WINTER.

The hour of dinner, and the arrangements of the table, are the same as in England. Some of the official people and the wealthy merchants entertain very handsomely; the cuisine and wines are good, and the markets supply a fair extent of luxuries. Formal dinners are seldom graced by the presence of the younger ladies; they generally defer their appearance till tea-time, in the drawing-room; where, joined by a few of the dancing gentlemen and some young officers, they get up a quadrille or a waltz; music is not much cultivated, except as an assistant to the dancing. The French Canadians are very fond of cards; round games are often introduced at their evening parties, and some even of the younger ladies can play a capital rubber of whist. Small plays, as in England, are also frequently introduced, to vary the amusements.

The young people often form large parties for snow-shoeing excursions; they walk eight or ten miles without fatigue, and the awkwardness and tumbles of those not accustomed to the exercise are a constant source of mirth. A man's snow shoe is about a yard long, by a little more than a foot wide in the centre; to the front, rather of an oval shape, behind, narrowing to a point. The frame is a thin piece of ash, bent into this shape, and strung with light stripes of moose-skin, in the manner of a racket or battle-door, but of so close a net, that when pressed upon the softest snow it sinks but little into the surface. The foot is covered with a slipper or moccasin of moose leather, attached by the point to the snow shoe with straps of the same material, leaving the heel free to rise or fall with the motion of walking. The exercise is fatiguing to those who are not accustomed to it, but the elastic spring of the snow shoe lifts you along at a more rapid pace than the usual one of walking. The ladies' snow shoes are

AGRICULTURE IN CANADA.

A reference to the display of cereals and other agricultural productions made by Canada, at the Exhibitions of London and Paris, might be considered sufficient to illustrate the remarkable adaptation of the soil to their growth and cultivation; but so limited a notice would leave the question of permanent fertility still unanswered. When, however, it is answered that the area in which the astonishing crops of wheat are raised, for which Upper Canada is so justly distinguished, extends over three-fourths of the present inhabited parts of the country, and that the prevailing soils consist of rich clays of great depth, the question of permanent fertility resolves itself into that of husbandry.

In the valleys of some of the largest rivers of Upper Canada, wheat has been grown after wheat for forty years. The first crops yielded an average of 40 bushels to the acre; but under the thoughtless system of husbandry then pursued, the yield diminished to 12 bushels to the acre, and compelled a change of system, which has had the effect of restoring the land to its original fertility. This system of exhaustion has effected its own cure, and led to the introduction of a more rational method of cultivating the soil. Years ago, when roads were bad and facilities for communicating with markets were few and far between, wheat was the only salable produce of the farm, so that no effort was spared to cultivate that cereal to the utmost extent. Now, since railroads, mac-

The Municipal system of Canada is admirably suited to the exigencies of a young and vigorous country; its success has been complete. In order to comprehend it, it is necessary to state that Upper Canada is divided into Counties; each County is divided into Townships; so that, on an average, each township is about ten miles square. The inhabitants of a township elect five "Councillors," the councillors elect out of this number a presiding officer, who is designated the "Town Reeve." The Town Reeves of the different townships are formed into a "County Council;" this council elect their presiding officer, who is styled the "Warden." The Town Council and County Council are Municipal Corporations, possessing the power to raise money for Municipal purposes, such as making public improvements, opening and repairing roads and bridges. And rough as is their business. The loud bugle,
And the hard-sounding drum, and clashing ex maha!
Now reign the louds of air. These cries—
Bring with them their own music, no do storm
Their thunders: no inspiring hymn, no psalm
The handmaid to devotion: no winged fugue
No song, no merry catch, no madrigal:
No tender strophe, no solemn rhapsody, but
The sharp alert, the call to hand and saddle.

Canada is a colony of Great Britain, but it is as free and unfettered as any free government nation. The wisdom of the Mother Country has entrusted the management of the affairs of this vast Dominion to the Governor of Canada, who is also Governor of British North America. He nominates an Executive Council, who are his advisers on all matters. He nominates a Legislative Council, who are his advisers on all matters. The Legislative Council was formerly called by members of the Crown.

The system of government is that of legislative monarchy and responsibility to electors, in imitation of, and as similar as possible to that of Great Britain. The Governor, the Executive Council, and the Legislative Council are all elected by the people. The Governor and the Executive Council are elected for a term of five years, and the Legislative Council for a term of seven years. The Governor and the Executive Council are elected by the people, and the Legislative Council is elected by the people.

In Lower Canada the extreme severity of the weather is, in a great measure, caused by the vicinity of the range of lofty and rugged mountains, as well as by its more northern position. The snow commences to fall in November, but seldom remains long on the ground till December. In that month constantly succeeds the snow, and the surface of the country. Towards the end of December the heaviest snow storms, the trade storm is followed by a perfect calm; the air becomes pure and frosty, and the sky of a clear and beautiful azure. The river St. Lawrence is frozen over every winter from Montreal to the Richelieu Rapids; but from thence to only once in about five years. At other times, however, we have enormous fields and masses of ice drifting up and down with the changing tide, increasing or diminishing with the severity or mildness of the weather. There the Island of Orleans divides the Great River into two branches, the St. Lawrence and the Richelieu. These two rivers are frozen together by the winds and waters, and form an enormous bridge from one shore to the other. The greatest degree of cold prevails towards the end of January, for a few days, occasionally so intense that the human frame can scarcely endure exposure to it for any great length of time. When winter has set in, nearly every animal, like the bear, remains torpid, while others change their color and habits. The birds, too, are torpid, and the softer kinds are often rent asunder as if by the explosion of a gun, and the irresistible expansive power of the frost. These become mad from the severity of the cold, and pull, a iron or other metal, when exposed to the air for a little time, burns the hand at the touch, as if it were red hot. During the still nights of intense frost, the woods send forth a creaking sound, like the noise of standing with hatchets. Sometimes a brief thaw occurs in the middle of winter, when a very extraordinary effect, called by the Canadians "le dégel," takes place. The snow upon the trees, the stems to the extremities of the smallest branches; the slight frost of the night freezes the moisture that covered the bark during the day; the branches become at last unable to bear their icy burden, and when a strong wind arises, the destruction among trees of every kind is immense. When the sun shines upon the forest covered with this brilliant incrustation, the effect is indescribably beautiful.

The months of March and April are usually hot; and the power of the sun's rays is heightened by the reflection of the ice and

BOURGEOIS No. 5, SCOTCH FACE.

The furthest sources of the Ottawa River are unknown. It rises to importance at the outlet from Lake Temiscaming, 350 miles west of its junction with the St. Lawrence. Beyond the Falls and Portage des Allumettes, 110 miles above the town of Hull, this stream has been little explored. There it is divided into two channels by a large island fifteen miles in length; the southernmost of these expands into the width of about four or five miles, and communicates by a branch of the river with the Mad and Muskrat Lakes. Twelve miles further south the river again forms two branches, including an extensive and beautiful island 20 miles in length. Numerous rapids and cascades diversify this wild but lovely scene. Thence to the foot of the Chenaux, wooded islands in picturesque variety deck the bosom of the stream, and the bright-blue waters here wind their way for three miles through a channel of pure white marble. Nature has bestowed abundant fertility as well as beauty upon this favored district. The Gatineau River joins the Ottawa near Hull, after a course of great length. This stream is navigated with canoes for more than 300 miles, traversing an immense valley of rich soil and picturesque scenery.

At the foot of the Chenaux, the magnificent Lake des Chats opens to view, in length about fifteen miles. The shores are strangely indented, and large number of wooded islands stud the surface of the clear waters. At the foot of the lake, there are falls and rapids. Thence to Lake Chaudiere, a distance of six miles, the channel narrows, but it expands again, to form that beautiful and extensive basin. Rapids again succeed, and continue to the Chaudiere Falls. The boiling pool into which these waters descend is of great depth; the sounding-lure does not reach the bottom at the length of 300 feet. It is supposed that the main body of the river flows by a subterraneous passage, and rises again half a mile lower down. Below the Falls, the navigation is uninterrupted to Grenville, 60 miles distant. The current is scarcely perceptible; the

The hour of dinner, and the arrangements of the table are the same as in England. Some of the official people and the wealthy merchants entertain very handsomely; the cuisine and wines are good, and the markets supply a fair extent of luxuries. Formal dinners are seldom graced by the presence of the younger ladies; they generally defer their presence till tea-time, in the drawing-room; where, joined by a few of the dancing gentlemen and some young officers, they get up a quadrille or a waltz; music is not much cultivated, except as an assistant to the dancing. The French Canadians are very fond of cards; round games are often introduced at their evening parties, and some even of the younger ladies can play a capital rubber of whist. Small plays, as in England, are also frequently introduced, to vary the amusements.

The young people often form large parties for snow-shoeing excursions: they walk eight or ten miles without fatigue, and the awkwardness and tumblers of those not accustomed to the exercise are a constant source of mirth. A man's shoe is about a yard long, by a little more than a foot wide in the centre; to the front rather of an oval shape, behind, narrowing to a point. The frame is a thin piece of ash, bent into this shape, and strung with light pieces of moose-skin, in the manner of a racket or battledore, but of so close a net, that when placed upon the softest snow it sinks but little into the surface. The foot is covered with a slipper or moccasin of moose leather, attached by the point to the snow-

DIRECTIONS FOR CHOOSING WOOD TYPE.

In this specimen our object is to give a "six line" of the principal styles of plain letters, in the most of which we give the length of an alphabet in inches over the line at the right. From this a printer can see which letter is the most condensed, and which is the most extended, by comparing the figures. Also, a letter cut twice the size, which would be twelve lines, would be twice as long in the alphabet, as a six line,—twenty-four line would be four times as long. For instance, if a Roman letter is desired and the O is an inch square, 9 line would be an inch and a half each way, 12 line would be 2 inches square, a 36 line would be 6 inches square, and so on. When the proportion is increased one way it is also increased the other way in the same ratio. The lengths of the alphabets given only apply to type of our own manufacture. Lower Case and Figures are made to nearly all these letters, and printers must be particular to say whether they want Lower Case and Figures or not, as we put them in if not otherwise directed.

P. S.—The "A's" of all fonts are stamped "Wm. H. Page & Co., Greeneville, Conn."
